THAT MADE EVEN THE NEW VORK SHOW GIRL ENVIOUS.

Li Sum Ling, Boss of a Hongkong Newspaper, Pays Us a Visit in His Trip Around the World-He Is Here to Look Us Over, Only as an Observer.

When the youthful looking managing editor of the Hongkong Wah Tes Po (Chinese Daily Newspaper) entered with padded footfalls the White room of the Hotel Knickerbocker last evening for dinner the flash of color that his costume added to the dining room caused many a feeding show girl to look up with envy. He was all silk and satin except for the knee high boots, or hai, of black felt that he wore and he began with a tiny pempon of scarlet upon his mo, or cap, and ran down through the garments of rustling satin that showed a changesble wine color in the electric light against a sort of split up the side sheath skirt, or cheung-sam, of pale blue satin that came to his ankles. In between the pompon and felt boots were all the other colors.

The Chinese editor, who had just come from Antwerp on the Kroonland and is making a tour of the world, is Mr. Li Sum Ling, and he looks to be under 35. A new made friend of his, Mr. McDonaldwho is not an Oriental, but a native American-accompanied Mr. Li to the Knickerbocker. Mr. Li had luncheon and then took a short taxicab ride.

One approached his room later wondering whether one should have brought Joe Singleton or some other good interpreter along. Mr. Li's early reply, however, to a question whether he had gone about the city alone or with friends settled the interpreter question.

No, I was quite alone, you know, this afternoon," he answered. "May I offer you a cigarette? Thank you."

The accentuation of "quite" and "you know" might have come from an Oxford man. You were timid after that about asking him about what he thought of the high buildings, and were the American girls good looking, and isn't New York the busy little burg, and whether he was at the Hippodrome and the Aquarium, and how about the grub here, and take it by and large aren't we the great folks,

Mr. Li brought up the high buildings matter himself. Their height was one thing, he said, that had come up to his thing, he said, that had come up to his preconceived ideas, and even surpassed the notions he had gained from pictures he had seen in China. New York was quite as busy as, if not busier than, he had expected. And when speaking about the telegraph service of his own newspaper, Mr. Li dropped a remark which showed that he is not as far from being in touch with American news as one in touch with American news as one would imagine, even if he had landed on the continent for the first time in his life only a few hours before

"When, for instance, you cheer for Taft or Bryan on election night next Novemhe said, "we shall know in our Hongkong newspaper office which caudi-date you are cheering for almost before the first of the cheers have diel out."

Mr. Li is businesslike. With a pre-monition that some of the New York papers might have him here as an envoy Hiance the Chinese newspaper man had printed on board the Kroonland just printed on board the Kroonland just before landing many sheets of paper whereon was a denial that he is here on whereon was a denial that he is here on a political mission, but which insisted that he is merely going around the world to "take a look." Mr. Li distributed his printed sheets to the reporters after he had greeted a number of his countrymen—Chinese students from Columbia and other New York colleges—who had gone down the bay with the reporters to greet him at Quarantine.

greet him at Quarantine. Later at the Knickerbocker Mr. Li gave oral expression to many ideas, political and social, that he had included in his printed sheets.

"I am travelling simply to observe in his printed sheets.

"I am travelling simply to observe Western methods and civilization," said Li Sum Ling. "I say this because it has been said that I am an emissary that has been sent here to stir up the aniagonism to a particular Fastern Power or Powers. I do advocate heartily a closer selliance for hydrogen perwent. alliance for business reasons between China and America because of the immense advantage that would result thereby to both countries. But this, like my intense interest in educational matters, is quite a private, a personal, matter."

Mr. Li had grateful words for a private, a personal, matter."

Mr. Li had grateful words for America's return of a large part of the Boxer indemnity and for our contribution of a million or more in aid of the Kiangsu famine sufferers. He spoke of China's ever growing attempts to progress and of the way these attempts are resented and provoke an aggressive stilling on the part of some Powers."

are resented and provoke an aggressive attitude on the part of some Powers."

Throughout his remarks was an undertone of feeling that betokened no extravagant love for Japan. Mr. Lididn't say so in so many words, but he gave the impression that he thinks that Japan is getting too "cocky" and that if we want a larger market for our products and want to aid ourselves in other ways, and in the meantime give China a chance to boost herself, we should enter into "a closer alliance or at least business rapprochement" with China least business rapprochement" with China

Mr. Li is going to look around America for five weeks. Last evening Chinese students and business men called steadily and kept him from being lone-some, and when night fell they took him down to Chinatown, where the Chung Wa Club was holding a celebration of the birthday of him whom Mr. Li spoke of as "our sage. Confucius."

CAR HITS AUTO, KILLING WOMAN. Driver Turned Out to Pass One Car and Ran Into Another.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 22 .- Mrs. William D. Garvey, wife of a wholesale confectioner of Fall River, was instantly killed and her two children were hurt when a Crescent Park electric car struck the automobile in which they were riding in East Providence this afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Garvey, Mrs. Annie Borden and the two children occupied the machine. Garvey who was driving the car pulled out from behind one car to pass it, when another on another track struck the automobile. Mrs. Garvey was killed

New Hamburg Liner Launched.

The new Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, like the Amerika but not quite so large, was launched yesterday at the yards of Blohm & Voss, at Hamburg. The yards of Blohm & Voss, at Hamburg. The ship was christened by the Countess won Goetzen, formerly Miss May Loney, of Washington, D. C. The Cleveland is 600 feet long, measures about 18,000 tons and is propelled by twin screws. She will ply between New York, England and the Continent and will go into commission next year. A representative of the German Emperor was at the launching and the chief speech was by Dr. Oswald. the chief speech was by Dr. Oswald, Mayor of Hamburg.

The Seagoers.

Sailing to-day by the Cunarder Mauretania, for Queenstown amd Liverpool: Herbert Parsons (not the county chairman), Col. George T. Shepley, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Smith, Walter A. Post, Mrs. G. Radclife Robinson, J. H. Low, Rear Admiral C. Goodrich, Godfrey Brown, Col. Forbes, Norman Bolton and Thomas J. Scully. Passengers by the White Star liner Oceanic, which sails to-day for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton:

John E. Ellis, M. P., and Mrs, Ellis, Mrs. Archibald K. Mackay, J. Barton Townsend, Mrs. J. W. Flavelle, Mrs. Nathan Abbott, A. Brownell and John Gilbert White.

CHINESE EDITOR IN COLORS EARL RUSSELL'S EX-WIFE DEAD. Woman of Many Matrimonial Jars Wa Victim of a "Claude Melnotte."

Special Cable Despatch to Tan SUN. LONDON, Sept. 22.—Mabel, formerly wife of Earl Russell, is dead. She gained notoriety through her unfortunate matrimonial ventures and her appearance on the vaudeville stage.

Mabel Edith Scott was the youngest laughter of Sir Claude Scott, the spendthrift son of a rich banker, who once sued his wife for divorce, but withdrew the suit. Lady Scott recovered $30,000 damages from Capt. Spicer for breach of promise and she had sundry unsavory lawsuits with members of her, own family.

Mabel married Earl Russell in 1890. She brought an action for divorce in 1895, making shooking charges against her husband. She abandoned these charges on the witness stand and the case was thrown out of court. The costs $25,000, were laid by the court on the Countess. Then H. A. Roberts of Bath College got a verdict for $15,000 for libel on account of statements she made regarding him in the divorce suit.

Next the Earl secured a judicial separation from her, but in 1895 she applied to tion from her, but in 1895 she applied to the courts for "restitution of conjugal rights," but was again defeated. In 1901, however, she scored heavily. Russell came to this country and got a divorce in Nevada; no papers were served on Countess Mahel. Russell then married a young woman, Mollie Somerville or Cooke, at Reno, and went back with her to England.

Cooke, at Reno, and went back with her to England.

Mabel at once sucd him for divorce and got a decree. In addition the Earl was arrested on a charge of bigamy. He pleaded guilty before the House of Lords and on July 18, 1901, was sentenced to three months in Holloway jail, which he served. In 1902 he introduced a free and easy divorce bill in the House of Lords, but it never made any headway.

On December 17, 1903, the Countess married a second time. She had gone on the music hall stage in the meantime and though making a good deal of money had seriously lost caste. Her new husband was described as Atheobald Stuart de Modena. He said he was a natural son of the Austrian Kaiser and expected a fortune of $40,000 a year.

fortune of $40,000 a year.

In a couple of weeks the bride discovered that he was plain William Brown, a footman, and he had been maintaining a footman, and he had been maintaining himself and her by borrowing money from shallow dupes. He was arrested for giving a false name at the registry office where they were married, but was let go. The Countess vacillated in her attitude toward him. At one time she seemed inclined to condone his deception, but at last, in 1904, she secured a diverce from him. The Austrian Ambassador made England uncomfortable for him because of his adoption of an Austrian title without any right to it and he disappeared, to Canada, it is said.

OBITUARY.

John Miller, who for forty years had been active in Republican politics of what is now the Seventh Assembly district, died of Bright's disease yesterday at his home, 35 West Eighteenth street. His timal illness selved him while he was attending the Republican State convention in Saratoga. Mr. Miller, who was a lawyer and dealer in real estate with an office at 1 Madison avenue, was in partnership for many years with the late Fred S. Gibbs. In the civil war he served as a surgeon in the Teuth New York Volunteers, rie had a summer home at Valley Streau, L. 1. His wife and nine children, one of whom is a son, survive him.

mine children, one of whom is a sol, suffered him.

Mary B. Vorhees, wife of the Rev. Dr. Sheldon Jackson, a noted Presbyterian missionary among the Indians and Alaskane, died at her home in Washington, N. Y., on Sunday evening at the age of 73 years. The body will be taken to Amsterdam, N. Y., to-day for burial in the cemetery at Minaville. Dr. and Mrs. Jackson celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding last hay. Beside her husband, Mrs. Jackson leaves two daughters, the Misses Delia S. and Elizabeth L. Jackson, both of Washington, and one brother, John H. Vorhees of Amsterdam.

Dr. Millard W. Heath, who for eighteen

John H. Vorhees of Amsterdam.

Dr. Millard W. Heath, who for eighteen years had been a justice of the peace in Hackensack, N. J., died last evening at his hone after a brief illness. He joined Pioneer Lodge, P. and A. M., forty years ago. He had served as fire chief, a member of the Board of Health, and was first inspector of the local fire alarm system. He was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1843, served in the Confederate army and was served in the Confederate army and was twice wounded. He is survived by a wife and five adult children. He married a sister of John Gamewell, the fire alarm system inventor.

system inventor.

Waiter J. Davis of 65 Norman street, East Orange, died yesterday in the City Hospital in Newark. He was injured on August 22 in an accident in which a trolley car on the Bloomfield avenue line ran over the lower part of his legs. He lay under the car for nearly an hour while hospital surgeons ministered to him as best they could until the arrival of a wrecking crew to lift the car from him. Mr. Davis, who was 36 years old, was a partner with his father in the manufacture of pearl buttons in Newark. He leaves a widow and one child.

child.

Walter H. Smith, who was Assistant Attorney-General for a part of President Grant's administration, died on Monday night at his home in Catletts, Fauquier county, Va. He was born in Litchfield county, Conn., in 1836, and was graduated from Union College. He read law in the office of Columbus Delano, who subsequently became Secretary of the Interior under President Grant, and was admitted to the bar. After Mr. Smith retired from public life he continued the practice of law until about twelve years ago.

law until about twelve years ago.

Patrick J. Cosgrove, who was taken ill last August while serving on the Federal Grand Jury, died yesterday at his home, 144 East Sixtieth street. He was a boss truckman who retired from business ten years ago. Two sons and three daughters survive him. James J. Cosgrove, the etdest, is a lawyer at 52 William street. William, the second son, is in the automobile business in Providence, R. I. Mrs. Joseph Eustace and Grace and Mary Cosgrove are the surviving daughters.

are the surviving daughters.

F. M. Howarth, the artist whose comics have appeared in Puck and in the newspapers for the last ten years, died yesterday in Philadelphia. He was about 45 years old. He first attracted notice with his drawings for Puck, which contained figures distinguished for their large round heads and exceptionally large eyes. He left Puck for the Hearst papers several years ago and created several comic characters, including "Lulu and Leander" and "Mr. E. Mark."

Justin Clerice, who was born in 1883 in Buenos Ayres and who had lived for twenty years in France, died yesterday in Paris. He was a popular and prolific composer of comic opera. He put more than twenty ballets and operettas to his credit during the twenty years he was in Paris, and one of his more ambitious works, "By Order of the Emperor," was sung at the Opera Comique. He was an officer of the Academy. He wrote under the name of Maxime Lyonel.

Adolph O. Baumann, manufacturer of He wrote under the name of maxime Lyonel.
Adolph O. Baumann. manufacturer of ivory goods at 53 West Thirty-seventh street, Manhattan, who was prominently known in that and the lewelry trade, died suddenly yesterday of acute indigestion at his home, 36 East Forty-eixth street, Bayonne. He was 55 years old and is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter.

ATTACKS P. S. COMMISSION.

John C. Sheehan, Applying for Rehearing, Says It's an Unconstitutional Affair.

The Public Service Commission received morning was by Secretary Straus of the resterday an application from the Long Department of Commerce and Labor. Acre Electric Light and Power Company for rehearing on the petition it made last June for permission to issue $10,000,000 preferred stock and $50,000,000 mortgage

John C. Sheehan is behind the company and the purpose of the corporation was to sell stock in order to build a plant of sufficient power to supply electric light to the theatre district. The petition was denied on the ground that need for a new lighting company in the district had not been shown. Now, Mr. Sheehan in applying for a re-Now, Mr. Sheehan in applying for a rehearing, incidentally says that the decision of the commission is of no effect because the act by which it was created is unconstitutional. He says the act gives the commission the right to deprive citizens of property without due process of law.

The application was referred to the lawyers of the board.

COMMENCEMENT-DAY AT SEA

BOYS OF THE OLD NEWPORT QUALIFY AS MARINERS.

34 Graduates Into the Merchant Service Show Off Aloft, Cut Away a Fouled Burgee and Get Their Diplomas-Yes, and Prizes, Just Like the Shore Boys.

Thirty-four husky youngsters who had just returned from seeing a part of the world on the New York Nautical School's training ship Newport stood at attention on the old barkentine's main deck yesterday afternoon and received from the hands of Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., president of the Board of Education, diplomas accrediting them as graduates under officers of the merchant marine. With the diplomas went words of praise for past performances and hope for the future from those who help along the education of young mariners by more than words. Not long ago the Newport dropped down the East River to anchorage off the East Twenty-fourth street recreation pier after having gathered barnacles from half a dozen Old World ports. It was last spring that the obsolete gunboat, with ner crew of healthy boys aboard to work her, put out from the East River berth for Plymouth, Gibraltar, Madeira and the Canaries. Once out on the high seas she had ignored her engine and with sails spread had ploughed the main like any ld ship of the line. Her officers said yesterday that the old Newport showed then that she could tack on the breadth of a sea biscuit and not a blow was there that could make her turn tail to the spindrift.

All shipshape and tidy, her hull gleaming white and every jib and mainsail tucked in like the sheets on a hospital cot, the Newport lay in midstream yesterday awaiting her visitors. A Department of Docks tug, plying between the recreation pier and the starboard gangway, carried out the mothers, sisters and other kin to all the boys aboard until the main deck from the funnel to the wheel grating was jammed with shore folk eager to see the goingson. The graduating class, wearing for the first time their tidy uniforms of blue, with the vizored cap, stood in dress parade along the starboard side of the main deck, looking neither to the left nor to the right.

About 8:30 o'clock a chap in white stepped back to the mizzen and blew 'Assembly' on the bugle. Then Richard F. Alderoft, Jr., trig and natty in frock coas and tile, by virtue of his position as chairman of the executive committee of the Nautical School, took his stand before the graduates and made a salutatory. That address was worth sailing half way around the world to hear; it made the graduates stiffen up and look forward to the time when they would be wearing gold lace on the bridge of transutlantic racers.

Mr. Alderoft having finished, there followed something for the land folks to wonder at. Somebody blew a bosn's pipe up forward and all of the youngsters of the class of '00 swarme' up the rigging of the class of '00 swarme i up the rigging of the foremast and bogan to do stants with the sails. All the square sails on the foremast had been clewed down as tight as the shell on a cockroach before the whistle sounded, within a minute ropes began to fly and tackles to whistle, and the yards lengthened out to the give of the unfurled pails.

The youngstors in white swarmed out along the manropes, balancing and swaying like tightwire artists at a circus. Some swarmed up the topmast shrouds to mind the blocks there, with nothing to hold them from a drop to the deck but the clamp of their ankles about the ropes. A pretty piece of work it was mishap ropes. A pretty piece of work it was, and because it was marred by a mishap it was all the prettier. The school's burgee of red and blue fouled in the tie burgee of red and blue fouled in the deblock high up above the topmost rung of the ratlines. Two young fellows had to climb up the stays and cut the bunting away from the block. It was a tickitsh piece of business, but they did it as easily as a boy from a public school ashore and place his kimmie for a pot shot would place his kimmie for a pot shot off the knee.

When at an order all the sails were furled again and the stays swung back into place the class of '60 slipped down the ratines to deck again and the exhibition work of the exercises was over. President Winthron then awarded the diplomas to the thirty-four graduates, and Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller. Associate City Superintendent of Schools, awarded the prizes for excellence.

Dwight A. Smith and William A. J. Keop received respectively a sextant

Dwight A. Smith and William A. J.
Keop received respectively a sextant and a binocular, first and second prizes nwarded by the Maritime Association of New York for general excellence. Because he had surpassed in "marlinspike seamanship"—whatever that may be—Ralph Wood received the Richard B. Aldcroft, Jr., prize. The neatest boy of the class, William A. J. Koop, again received the prize annually given by Mrs. Aldcroft, in this case a copy of Lecky's "Wrinkles." Hobert Williamson, being the niftiest at heaving the lead, was the recipient of the prize of $10 given by Mrs. Charles Catlin. The alumni association medals for general excellence, excellence in seamanship and in navigation went to Dwight
A. Smith, Philip H. Sheridan and Hobart Ramsey.

A. Smith, Philip H. Sheridan and Hobart Ramsey.

After Executive Officer C. Marsden had read the ratings of the class of '09, the next to be graduated, and Capt. C. B. Parsons had bestowed a few words of advice on the graduates the thirty-four honored youths who are ready to command any ship that goes by sail or turbine if once they get the chance said good-by to the Newport and went ashore in their brand new uniforms.

FISHERIES MEN MEET. Secretary Straus Welcomes Delegates to Fourth Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.-About 50 delegates are in attendance at the fourth International Fishery Congress which began its sessions in Washington to-day. About thirty of the delegates are from foreign countries. George M. Bowers, United States Commissioner of Fisheries, presided over the first session to-day and after the welcoming addresses and responses the principal business was the ratification of nominations of officers who were selected at a preliminary meeting.

A display of moving pictures of fishing, hunting and logging scenes was given to-night. To-morrow a luncheon will be given, followed by a reception at the White House by President Roosevelt. Wednesday evening will be spent at the Library of Congress, where there will be a display of fishery literature.

The principal address of welcome this received the second that the principal address of welcome this principal address of welcome this principal address of welcome this second that the principal address of the second that the principal address of the second that the principal address of the second that th

Army and Navy Orders. WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.- These army orders were issued to day?

Capt. Thomas H. Jackson, Corps of Engineers, to duty at camp of instruction, Atascadero Hanch, California.
Capt. Robert Alexander from Eleventh to Nineteenth Infantry.
Capt. Edgar A. Meyer from Nineteenth to Eleventh Infantry.
Capt. Grayson V. Heidt, Eleventh Cavalry, Second Lieut. William H. Hawes, Fourth Infantry, and Capt. Edward N. Macon, Coast Artillery, retired for disability. These navy orders were issued:

These navy orders were issued:

Capt. J. G. Doyle, retired, to duty as inspector of ordnance, naval magazine, Hingham, Mass., and additional temporary duty as inspector of ordnance, navy yard, Boston.

Commander J. D. McDonald, detached as inspector, First lighthouse district, Portland, Me. September E. to duty fitting out the Castine and command that vessel when commissioned.

Commander C. M. Fahs, from Naval War College, Newport, to First lighthouse district, Portland, Me. Paymaster F. G. Pyne, when discharged from treatment naval hospital, Las Animas, Col., granted three months sick leave.

COL. HARRY W. MICHELL DEAD. Deputy State Excise Commissioner in

Brooklyn Succumbs to Apoplexy. Col. Harry W. Michell, who had been Deputy State Excise Commis Brooklyn since the organization of the department in 1896, died suddenly yesterday morning of apoplexy at his summer home, Bayport, L. I. The announcement of his death was a great shock to his friends, as he seemed to be in his usual good health when he left his office on Monday afternoon. Col. Michell was long prominent in military and political life in Brooklyn and one of the most popular veterans of the "Fighting Fourteenth" Regiment, with which he was connected for thirtysix years, serving in all grades and elever years as its commander

He was born in New York city on March 23, 1837, and after leaving Hamilton College began the study of law, soon abandoning it, however, to engage in business He enlisted in the Fourteenth Regiment He enlisted in the Fourteenth Regiment in April, 1861, and served with it all through the war. His promotion was rapid and when hostilities ended he was Captain of his company. He distinguished himself at the Battle of Gettysburg, refusing to go to the rear, although suffering from a bullet wound in the breast. He was captured at the battle of the Wilderness and remained a prisoner for pearly a year, when he was exchanged. Wilderness and remained a prisoner for nearly a year, when he was exchanged. He became Colonel of the Fourteenth Regiment in October, 1885, and was Senior Colonel in the Second Brigade at the time of his retirement in 1896.

During his military career Col. Michell was active in Republican politics and for many years a delegate to the county committee. He was the candidate for County Clerk in 1886, but was defeated. The many years a tose mittee. He was the candidate for County Clerk in 1888, but was defeated. The only official place he ever held was that of Deputy State Excise Commissioner, to which he was appointed by Commissioner Lyman. His administration of the office had given general satisfaction.

the office had given general satisfaction.
On receiving notice of the death of Col. Michell yesterday Excise Commissioner Maynard N. Clement appointed Deputy Commissioner Edward kendall of Deputy Commissioner Edward Rendall of Rochester to take temperary charge of the Brooklyn office so that there might be no delay in the transaction of business.

Col. Michell was a member of the Union League Club, the Prisoners Association of the State of New York, Stella Lodge, F. and A. M., Cœur de Lion Commandery, Knights of St. John and Malta and C. K. Warren Post, G. A. R.

He leaves a widow and two daughters. The body will be brought to his late home, 379 Macon street, and buried with military honors.

FARLEY WILDER DEAD. He Was for Forty-seven Years in the U. S. Assay Office Here.

Wilder, first assistant assayis: n the United States Assay Office in this city, died suddenly yesterday morning of acute cardice dilatation in the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn, in his sixtysecond year. The body was removed to the !resi tence of Fraderick P. Bellamy, a brother-in-law of the deceased at 200 Henry street, where Mr. Wilder had lived Henry street, where Mr. Wilder had lived except during the summer months.

Mr. Wilder was the oldest employee in the assay office and was greatly esteomed both by his superiors and subordinates. He was born in Albany, N. Y., and was a son of the late John L. Wilder, a noted resident of that city and the founder of Rochester University. His father died addenly when young Wilder was in his fourteenth your, and instead of entering Yale College as he had planned the boy went to work in the assay office in New York. This was in 1861 and he remained ever afterward in the service of the Gov-

York. This was in 1861 and he remained ever afterward in the service of the Government, rising step by step until he became the first assistant assayist.

In 1902 the Emperor of China sought out in this country the most competent man to reorganize the assaying system of the empire and the Washington authorities designated Mr. Wilder, and he was offered the post but declined it.

designated Mr. Wilder, and he was offered the post, but declined it.

Mr. Wilder was a member of the Hamilton Club, the New York Athletic Club, the Dyker Meadow Club and the New York Barnard Club. He was unmarried and is survived by two sisters. Mrs. Frederick P. Bellamy and Mrs. Almon Goodwin, and a brother, Horatio Wilder.

The funeral, which will be held this afternoon is to be private, but a delogation afternoon, is to be private, but a delegation of forty of Mr. Wilder's fellow employees will attend at their special request. Inter-

SUICIDE IN SUBWAY. Weman Jumps in Frent of Train at the Brooklyn Bridge Station. Mrs. Emma A. Shafford, 35 years old who lived in a boarding house in Fort who lived in a boarding house in Fort Greene place, Brooklyn, committed sui-cide at noon yesterday by jumping in front of a northbound subway express train at the Brooklyn Bridgs station. She had walked up and down the plat-form several minutes before the express train came along, and then she stepped in front of it.

The motorman Frank Lewis, threw

The motorman, Frank Lewis, threw on the emergency brake, but was not able to stop the train until two cars had passed over her body. A targe crowd saw Mrs. Shafford jump, and two women fainted. The body was wedged under the train and it was fifteen minutes before it was taken out.

In the woman's dress was found a bankbook on the Seaman's Bank of 75 Wall Street made out to Emma Shafford and showing deposits of $2,300 and showing deposits of $2,300 .An insurance policy was also found and a rent receipt for $2.50.

Robert H. Carter, a clerk of 524 West 157th street, identified, the body as that of his aunt. He said that she had been irrational since the death of her husband several months ago and that her suicide was not unexpected. was not unexpected.

SCOLDED THE PRESIDENT.

But a Strange Man at an Oyster Bay Phone Didn't Have a Connection. OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 22.-Severa hours after President Roosevelt left Oyster Bay to-day a man, who is believed Oyster Bay to-day a man, who is believed to have been a crank or weak minded, came to town in an automobile, and stopping at the store of John Cowell, an electrician, asked Mrs. Cowell, who was alone there, if he could use the phone. He did not ring, but lifted the receiver and began to scold the President about a Government job and talked in a rambling manner. Mrs. Colwell ran out of the store to the rear and called her mother. They couldn't find a man about and Mrs. Colwell went back into the store, grabbed a hammer and ordered the man out, but he insisted that he wanted to talk. Just then the chauffeur entered and took the then the chauffeur entered and took the The chauffeur said the man hired the auto in New York to come to Oyster Bay.

He said he didn't know the name of his fare. Nobody thought to get the number on the automobile license tag.

City Boys to "Vote" for President. The Y. M. C. A. announced that on October 31 it will have a "national and State election" with boys as voters. New York city boys between the ages of the State election" with boys as voters. New York city boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years will be eligible. The qualifications in other respects than age will be the same as for real voters in real elections. October 17 and 28* are the registration days at the Y. M. C. A. bulldings. The scheme is part of the Y. M. C. A. plan of teaching young folks good citizenship.

Movements of Naval Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The cruiser Prairie has arrived at Hampton Roads, Prairie has arrived at Hampton Roads, the cruiser Milwaukes at San Francisco, the cruisers Rainbow, Chattancoga, Denver, Galveston and Concord at Nagasaki, the collier Justin at Mare Island, the gunboate Yankee and Hist, submarines Cuttlefish, Octopus, Tarantula and Viper, and torpedo boats Stringham, Barney, De Long, Thornton and Tingey at Buzzard's Bay. The collier Nero has sailed from Buzzard's Bay for Boaton.

BERNARD SHAW STAKED DALY

GAVE HIM A PLAY OUTRIGHT. BUT HE'D MADE $60,000.

So Says the Reminiscing Actor as He Answers the Last of the Bankruptey estions and Gives Out Passes to His Show to Prove He Is Happy.

Arnold Daly, with a fountain pen in one hand and a lead pencil in the other, obliged all comers in the big office building at 239 Broadway last evening by writing out pesses for his show Regeneration." Mr. Daly, his bankruptcy examination having ended, felt in the mood to give away dollar bills. Unable to realize this ambition, he did the best he could.

He entered the Less ir brothers' law shop late and gloomily. His attire was as gray as the day. They as'ted him first about his career as manager at the Berkeley Theatre, a year ago. Was it a financial success? He assured them feelingly that it had not been.

"Why? The answer is simple enough," said Daly bitterly. "One act plays are a joke. They are a drug in the market. I though mine were all right, but my

"Oh, the Lieblers are charming people, said Daly with a characteristic twist of the lips. "I have succeeded in convincing them that money isn't everything. Through me they can go on expressing their artistic ideas, because they make plenty of money elsewhere with other projects.

"Do you mean that seriously?" a lawyer shot at him swiftly,

"A man can give a serious answer without shedding tears," Daly replied. They wanted him to produce his con tract with Liebler & Co. Mr. Daly sa'd he supposed he had one, but to save his life he didn't know where to lay hands on it. "Mr. Daly, are you trying to conceal anything?" "Conceal? Me concearanything? Bless your soal, my finances are worse than even I could paint them!" The lawyer representing the Shuberts wanted to know whether Mr. Daly didn't the blaze the fireboats Mayor Strong and owe the Shuberts considerable money. William L. Boody came along and helped "As a matter of conscience between In the meantime ferryboats crowded with the first inrush of Manhattan workers God and myself," said Arnold Daly, "I don't owe the Shuberts a cent." with the first inrush of Manhattan workers were held up in midstream waiting to get to their slips. Several yachts of the New York Yacht Club, which has a station north of the ferry, moved out into the river to keep away from the fire.

The electrical plant of the ferryhouse

The only plays in which he had a clea interest, Mr. Daly said, were "The Trifle" and "The Suicide." both of which he wrote and in which he had played. Nowrote and in which he had played. No-body else ever played in them, he added, and probably no body else ever would. The lawyer wanted to know what interest George Bernard Shaw had in his financial affairs, and he gave a brief history of his relations with the Irish play wright. Shaw wrote "How He Lied to Her Hus-band" and gave it to Daly outright. The lawyers thought that was odd, but Daly informed them that he had paid George

October.

during September and Tickets good on the electric-lighted Los Angeles Limited via Chicago & North Western, Union Pacific and Salt Lake Route, and the China and Japan Fast Mail via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North Western Line. Personally Conducted

Daily from Chicago

Excursions in through Pullman tourist sleepers. Only $7.00 double berth. S. A. Hutchison, Manager, 212 Clark Street, R. M. JOH 150N. General A-ont. C. & N.W. Ry-481 Brossway, New York

"Why are the Lieblers running "The Regeneration' at a loss?" inquired a lawyer suddenly.

"Oh, there are numerous instances of shows which started as failures turning out the biggest kind of success;s." said Mr. Daly. "Tak's 'Florodora,' one of the biggest hits in theatrical history, a frost at first, you remember.

"Do the Lieblers like to stand a loss of morals had it chased off."

"Do the Lieblers like to stand a loss of morals had it chased off."

Eventually they got back to contracts

"Why are the Lieblers running "The Regeneration' at a loss," inquired a lawyer suddenly.

"But the play hasn't been worth anything without me in it," he added modestly. "The Dahlia Show and Autumn Show.

"The Dahlia Show and Autumn Exhibition of Garden and Greenhouse Flowers, opened yesterday afternoon in the American Institute at 19 West Forty-fourth street. The prize for the finest group of growing plants and greens which should occupy an area of not more than can Institute at 19 West Forty-fourth Eventually they got back to contracts and the sacredness thereof, which amused Mr. Daly. Contracts, it appeared, were full of foolish little clauses which nobody ever was expected really to live up to. Smoking in dressing rooms and swearing for instance. sixty square feet went to the exhibit of new celusia from Howard Gould's Port Washington estate, Castle Gould. The prize amounts to $50. Harry "Why, do you swear, Mr. Daly?"

"Do 1? I should hope so! I consider swearing an excellent form of expression."

The lawyers by nightfall informed Mr. Gould for his exhibition of foreign Daly that the formal examination was grapes, and a third for his cantaloupes; ended. It remains to be seen whether the lawyers who represent Mr. Daly's creditors will consent to the actor's dispersion by the dalphase whose my red by the dalphase wh As for the dahlias, whose myriad hues a to their display look like a huge kaleidoscope, the experts declared that they constituted the finest collection of file kind ever seen. The first prize for this finest collection of fifty varieties went to W. D. Lothrop of East Bridgewater.

A flotilla of private yachts and ferry-boats made a lively scene in the East River off Twenty-third street at 7 o'clock yesterday morning when there was a fire in the centre slip of the ferryhouse. While the land firemen were struggling with the land firemen w as the "Countess of Lonsdele."

Much enthusiasm was called forth by the display of fifty varieties of single dablias from the gardens of J. T. Lovettin, Little Silver, L. I., to which was awarded one of the first prizes.

Among all the dahlia hues at the show there is not to be found a single point? Among all the damla mies at the show there is not to be found a single speci-men of any shade of green, so the devi-otees of the stately flower are still striv-ing toward an apparently unattainable.

Doc Morton Surrenders.

George N. Morton, known as Doc More ton, appeared in General Sessions yesterday on the indictment charging him with larceny on a $10,000 note deal with Roger Morgan of the Hopper-Morgan Company. He furnished $3,000 hail.

charge in his bankruptey proceedings.

FERRY HOUSE FIRE SCARE.

Vachts and Boats Keep Away at Blaze

at East Twenty-third Street.

The electrical plant of the ferryhouse was put out of business and gas and kerosene lamps were used last night. An hour's hard work was necessary to put the fire out. The ferry master said that the fire was caused by defective insulation in the boiler room, which supplies both the Twenty-third street and Greenpoint ferryhouses with electric light. The damage was about $10,000.